Biswakarma Puja

Biswakarma Puja is a vibrant festival dedicated to Lord Biswakarma, the divine architect and craftsman in Hindu mythology. Celebrated primarily in West Bengal, Assam, and among other communities across India, this festival honors the deity who is believed to be the creator of the universe and the guardian of all tools, machinery, and craftsmanship.

We are thrilled to share how we celebrated Biswakarma Puja this year! Every employee came together to participate in the festivities, making it a truly memorable occasion. Our Head Office staff put on an outstanding performance, showcasing their talents through vibrant dance and singing. A special highlight was the flute presentation by Souvik Das, which left everyone mesmerized. Thank you to everyone who contributed to the celebrations—your enthusiasm and creativity made this event a success!

Hi All

We are really blessed to have such a young and energetic team at NPEC. The growth of an organization is driven by the complete team and each one of you are playing a pivotal role in NPEC's growth.

I pray to God for to keep everyone healthy and give my best wishes for the coming festive season.

“Work Hard and Smart. This is the new age mantra which I feel has become very relevant in the present times and hope that everyone tries to incorporate this in their work area. Hard work without smartness does not bring results.”
